Statement Concerning Grievance 2015-01 (REPSA)

June 22, 2016

Bunge is committed to building a fully traceable supply chain, free of deforestation, peat clearance, human rights abuses and land tenure issues. We are working with our suppliers to achieve our goals and to ensure adoption of these principles more broadly.

As part of our commitment to building a sustainable supply chain, we are implementing a Grievance Procedure. In November, a complaint was received regarding the case of Reforestadora de Palmas del Petén, S.A. (REPSA) and allegations of human rights abuses and environmental pollution. We confirmed the presence of REPSA as an indirect supplier in our supply chain and have logged it on our grievance list.

While we do not have a direct commercial relationship with REPSA, we receive palm oil from the company via a small number of our direct suppliers. Bunge is engaging with each of these direct suppliers to assess the issues and remediation plans.

Based on information that we have received to date, we understand that a second party assessment has been conducted and remediation plans presented to REPSA. We also understand that there is an emerging effort underway to establish a meaningful dialogue among REPSA, local communities and NGOs.

REPSA recently issued a statement condemning violence and intimidation. We see this as an important first step toward implementing remediation efforts.

Bunge takes the issues raised in this grievance seriously and condemns any forms of violence and intimidation in any instance, and in the specific context of this issue, where the creation of a safe and enabling environment is a prerequisite for dialogue and progress on the ground.

We will continue to monitor this situation closely, assess progress against commitments and plans, continue to engage with our direct suppliers to ensure that Bunge's palm supply reflects our Policy, and support collective efforts to improve conditions throughout our supply chains.
